Note from Internet Publisher: Donald L. Potter

October 1, 2008

I created this numbered edition of Hazel Loring's 1980 Reading Made Easy for Blend Phonics for First Grade to help me make and manage sounding-out cards. They are similar to flashcards, but not intended for instant sight-word memorization. The cards can be mixed and used to practice decoding. Students eventually, with practice, become so fast at sounding-out words that it almost appears that they are sight-reading the words. The truth is, they always they need to process all the letters in order to become the best readers they can be. Reading on a mere acceptable level is never acceptable. Every student should have the proper teaching so they can read highest level of reading of which they are capable.

I run my index finger under the letters from left to right, pointing at the letters to assist the students in maintaining good, flowing left to right directionality. This is a main feature of Blend Phonics and a major key to its success.

My cards are hand-made with my personal style of Standard American Cursive. Cursive-first has many advantages. Students see the individual letters tied together by the connecting strokes in individual words. The b/d confusion is totally eliminated at the very beginning stages of reading and writing. I use alphabet cards with both print and cursive on them so the students build a strong bond between the two forms of letters. They also develop better handwriting by repeated exposure to the words in cursive. You might be surprised to learn that SAT writing scores in cursive are higher on the average than print. The Herman Dyslexia program uses cursive-only as part of its method of curing dyslexia.

A pdf file of 3 x 5 cards with is available for free download on the Blend Phonics Page my web site.

This document is only for helping teachers label and manage the cards. To teach the method, you will need Loring's original book which is on my web site www.donpotter.net.

Also see my Blend Phonics Reader where the students can practice reading in Times New Roman Font. There is also a Blend Phonics Cursive Reader which will help children become fluent I reading cursive.

I recommend following up Blend Phonics with Noah Webster's 1824 American Spelling Book. It is available in three easy-to-read editions on my web site above.

On the next two page are sample cards.
